TRAVEL INFORMATION

CLIMATE

Hawai'i's weather remains mild and pleasant year-round with temperatures ranging 75° - 85°. April through September are the sunniest and driest months; trade winds bring slightly cooler air in October through March. Prepare for colder temperatures in higher elevations.

HOW TO DRESS

Pack casual, comfortable clothes that are lightweight cotton or blend fabrics. Include good walking shoes for sightseeing or hiking and flip flops for the beaches. Bring warm clothing if you plan to visit Haleakala National Park on Maui or Volcanoes National Park and the summit of Mauna Kea on Hawai'i, the Big Island.

SUN PROTECTION

Because the UV index is much higher in Hawai'i, it's recommended to use a minimum SPF 30 sunscreen between 10:00 A.M. and 3:00 P.M. and reapply after swimming, even on cloudy days. A hat, sunglasses and lip protection are also advised.

TRAVELING IN HAWAI'I

Each island is unique. In order to experience all that Hawai'i has to offer consider renting a car. Many visitors also enjoy taking local transportation to explore the islands.

OCEAN SAFETY

The Pacific Ocean is beautiful, but using caution and respecting its power are important. Swim only in areas where lifeguards are on duty. Always check conditions with a lifeguard before venturing into the water. Never turn your back on the ocean, especially when standing on rock outcroppings, as a sudden wave can sweep you off your feet. Heed any posted warning signs.

TIME

From Los Angeles, the Hawaiian Islands are approximately a 5.5-hour flight. Hawai'i's time zone is three hours behind Pacific Standard Time and two hours behind during Daylight Savings Time.
